

On a une tête pour penser...

On a une tête pour penser,
Des yeux pour regarder,
Un nez pour respirer,
Une bouche pour manger,
Des oreilles pour écouter,
Des doigts pour toucher
Et un cœur pour aimer !

In English

We have a head to think,
Eyes to look/watch,
A nose to breathe,
A mouth to eat,
Ears to listen,
Fingers to touch
And a heart to love!

Joining in with our bodies and gestures helps memorise the words. You can use my ideas from the video or come up with your own – or even let your child(dren) chose theirs.

Now write your own poem! You may want to use the dictionaries to help you.

On a _____ pour _____,

_____ pour _____,

Et _____ pour _____!

You can have as few or as many body parts and actions as you like!

This can be used to do work on the indefinite article (un, une, des), singular and plural (“des” cannot be omitted in French, whereas in English you just say for instance “eyes”); work on verbs in the infinitive: I chose verbs ending in -er only but you could choose any verbs!

This is perfect for Valentine’s Day, Mothers’ Day, Fathers’ Day... or whenever you like!
